Department of Health—NHS Helps Over 26,000 Smokers In The South East Kick The Habit

More people than ever before are quitting smoking using NHS stop smoking services and the South East has one of the highest success rates in the country. Over 26,000 South East smokers managed to kick the habit last year in the best results ever achieved by the service and a huge rise on the previous year. Figures released today show that of the 40,000 smokers in the region, who set a quit date between April 2003 and March 2004, almost two thirds had successfully given up four weeks later compared to just half nationally.
