

The London Gazette.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

From MONDAY, July 24. to FRIDAY July 27. 1671.

Whitehall, July 26.

His Majesty leaving Dartmouth the 23 in stant in the Evening, attended by his Grace the Duke of Monmouth, and several other persons of quality (his Royal Highness remaining there on board his Yachts, with intentions to return by Sea) arrived that night at Exeter, where His Majesty was received by the Mayor, (upon whom His Majesty was pleased to confer the Honor of Knighthood, as he had done the day before at Dartmouth upon Mr. Thomas Ci- ren their Recorder) and Aldermen, with the due Ceremonies, at the Gate of the City: The next morning early, His Majesty parting again from thence towards Salisbury, was pleased to lodge that night at the Earl of Pembroke's House at Wil- zon, within two miles of that place, which His Majesty passed the next morning, and in the Evening arrived here in perfect health. About the same time Her Majesty likewise arrived here, with Her Court from Hampton-Court.

Moskow, June 6. The 2 instant the great Rebell Stephan Radzin was brought Prisoner hither, in the manner following; first marched a Guard of Foot, consisting of about 400 Men, with flying Colours, and lighted Match; next, a party of Cossacks, under the Command of Cornelz Tacolowich, who it seems took him Prisoner, then the Rebel placed upon a Scaffold made for that purpose, to be drawn by Horses, upon which was erected a Gallows, under which he stood, with a chain about his Neck fastned to the Gallows, with a halter hanging by it, about his middle and hands were other chains, and upon his feet shackles; then followed his Brother on Foot, with a chain about his neck, which was fastned to the Scaffold, and last of all came several Companies of Foot of the Czars Guards; the Rebel was immediately after his arrival put to the Torture, where it is said, he made a large Confession, of which we yet want the particulars: The same day he was condemned to suffer death, which yesterday, after having been again tortured, he accordingly did in the open place before the Castle, a long Scroll, containing all the Crimes and Michiefs committed by him, since the Year 1663. having been first read upon the place; his Arms, Leggs, and Head, were set up in the principal place of the Town, upon five poles, the Trunk of his Body having been left in the Streets, to be devoured by Dogs and other Creatures. his Brother was present all the time of his Execution, and afterwards returned to prison again; what his Sentence may be, we as yet we know not. It is said, that the City of Astracan hath rendred it self, and sworn Allegiance to the Czar, which if true will doubtless put a stop to the troubles which have so long interrupted the quiet of these Countries.

Rome, July 11. The Treaty of agreement which was lately thought to have been very nigh concluding, between the Conestable of Colonna, and the Princes of Sulmona and de Palestrina-Borghese, concerning the R. A. R. were to have at any publick solemnity, at which they should all three be obliged to be present, is it seems now wholly broken off again, to the great dissatisfaction of the Cardinals Facchinetti, Delfino, and others who appeared extraordinary active, for the promoting this good understanding between them.

This week his Holiness finding himself in reasonable good health, was pleased to give Audience to the Ambassadors and other Forreign Ministers at present residing here.

The Marriage formerly spoken of between the Niece of the Cardinal Facchinetti, and the Prince Pamphilio, is, as is said, to be very suddainly consummated, with the good liking and satisfaction of their Friends and Relations on both sides. On Tuesday last the Bishop of Laon had Audience of his Holiness, by whom he was received with much kindness and esteem; after which he made several visits, though in a very private manner, his Trayn not being yet in a condition, which is intended to be extreme pompous and magnificent, to appear with him in publick.

Here is at present ill in Town, the Cardinals, Spada, Acquaviva, Vidoni, Bonelli, and Casso, though without any great fear of danger, except the first, who is said to be in a very weak condition. Our last Letters from Madrid tell us, that the Queen Regent hath reiterated her express Orders to Don Pedro d' Arragon Vice-Roy of Naples, for the giving all possible satisfaction to the Marquis de Vil- la Franca, in several matters he hath complained to have been injured in, at the return of that Vice-Roy from his late Embassy of Qbedierce; after which, that Marquess, intends to make all possible hast for Madrid to fetch his Lady, being, as is said, to succeed the Marquess d' Astorga here, as Ambasador Extraordinary from the Crown of Spain.

Some days since arryved here the Marquess Corne- tio Frangipani to sollicite the recovery of the Estate of the Marquess of that name, who lately suffered at Niewszad concerning the Rebellion in Hun- gary, to whom he is next Heir; which the Chamber of Actounts here, had since seised upon, as pretending it to have been forfeited to the Church; it is thought, by the assistance of powerful Friends, and amongst others of the Cardinal Antonio, he may in a short time come to rights in this affair.

Leghorn, July 13. The 7th instant arrived here the English Ferusalem from Gallipoli with Oyle, and the Owners Delight from the Gulf of Venice with Hemp, and the 11 departed again for England.
We have advice, that the Gallies of Maltba have lately taken an Argiers man of War of considerable Force, though with the loss of near 150 Men, besides other dammage they received in the rencounter.

Venice, July 17. The 15 instant went hence Proveditor General Morofini towards Dalmatia, where he is to succeed General Barbaro; the Gally which transports his Excellency to Zara, is to pass thence to Zant, to joyn with the rest of the Fleet under the command of General Bernardo there. About the beginning of the next week Cavaglier Quirini, parts hence on his Embassy to the Port, most of his Equip-page and Attendants being already gone.

The Turkish Fleet is still at Sea, though we hear not of any design they have in hand. The Corsairs of Tripoli, do very much infest the Seas near Gallipoli and those other parts, eight or ten Sails of them being seen together, and have lately taken two Tartans laden with Oyle, a Genouese with Salt, and two other Vessels bound for Naples.

From Dalmatia they write, that Procurator Nani was gone from Spalatro to Clissa, to meet the Bassa of Boffina, being the place appointed for their first conference to be the 12 instant. We have advice, that the Turks begin to be very numerous on the Frontiers of Hungary, and that they have lately fallen in upon a party of Heydukes, of which they killed about 70 upon the place, but withall, they add, that the Bassa had sent immediately to the Court at Vienna, to acquaint the Emperor with what had passed, and that it was not to be looked upon as a breach of the Peace, which they would ever keep inviolable, but onely as a just punishment on some of the Grand Signiors own Subjects, for so it seems, the Port counts them.

We are assured, that the Grand Signior is on his march towards Belgrade, with a very numerous Army, but on what design, none yet know. Here are Letters in Town, which tell us, that the Malta Galleys having lately met with three Argiers men of War off of Cantia, took the Admiral after a sharp engagement, the other two escaping by the favor of the wind; that they have taken above 200 Slaves; having lost in the action 20 Knights of their Order, and above threescore Seamen.

Dantzick July 22. The Dvet held at Marienburgh is happily concluded, the Nobility having expressed more than ordinary readiness to concur in any thing which might seem conducing to the security and welfare of the Kingdom, and to that end, have resolved to raise a considerable Summe of Money, proportionable to the present exigency of affairs.

From Warsaw they write, that the great General Sobietzki had sent thither to his Majesty several Letters, which he had received from Dorofensko, General of the Cossacks, containing the Conditions on which he would Treat with this Crown, which it is said, are more moderate then he hath formerly insisted on; what may be done upon it, we expect to hear very suddainly. That it is not yet known when the King will begin his journey towards Lublin and Leopol, the Queen not being yet perfectly well.

Brussels, July 26. Yesterday his Excellency the Count de Montorey returned hither from Hagnault, having visited Mons, Valenciennes, and several other places in those parts; it is said, his Excellency intends very suddainly for Flanders, and afterwards for Gelderland.

This Morning went hence several Companies of Spanish Foot for Dendermonde, where they are to continue in garrison. According to our last advices from Cologne, those Magistrates had given over all hopes of an Accommodation, and are wholly intent upon making all possible preparations to meet the danger which now seems so near to threaten them; that Elector is raising of Men with all imaginable vigor and diligence, and hath, as we are told, lately taken into his Service, the Regiment of the Count de Lip.

The Marshal de Crequi lyes still encamped with the Forces under his Command on the River Sarre, and as is said, hath sent to some of the Princes on the Rhine, to desire passage for his Troops in case he should have occasion

Brussels, July 29. The seven Companies of Spanish Foot which were lately sent to Mons, are now returned hither again, though the eight other Spanish Companies, which were upon the same occasion likewise sent thither have orders from his Excellency to continue there, till he shall otherwise direct.

The Duke d'Acersbot has been some days in Town, and hath in that time had several conferences with his Excellency; on Saturday next he returns again to Mons. To morrow his Excellency goes hence for Flanders, intending first for Ghent, where having made a short stay, will proceed to visit the whole Province round, as likewise Artois; it is thought his Excellency may be about a Month or six weeks absent from this place, where in the mean time, the work of the Fortifications is carried on with all the diligence imaginable.

Saturday last came to Town the Prince d'Arenbergh, but intends to make no long stay here. Don Emanuel de Lyra is not yet returned hither from the Hague, but is expected before his Excellencies departure.

We have advice, that Don Hieronimo Quinones, Governor of the Franche Comte, is on his way thither.

Cologne, July 28. The affairs of this place continue as formerly, which makes our Magistrates redouble their care, in the putting every thing in a becoming posture, and suitable to the present conjuncture of affairs; they have ordered for the better advancing our Fortifications, upon which the strength and security of this place seems to much to depend, that four Companies of Traya Bands, consisting of 600 Men, shall, besides the Soldiers, which are 2000 Men compleat, work dayly on the new Bulworks, which was yesterday put in execution, several of the Magistrates with the principal Citizens of the Town, having for their greater encouragement been there present, and assisted at the work.

Yesterday arrived here an Extraordinary Courier from Vienna with Letters to the Marquis de Grana, what their contents were, we yet know not. About the same time arrived here the Heer Ryhn Grave, Governor of Maastricht, who hath been since, together with the Heer van Sypestein, to visit the Fortifications of this place, and this day were treated at a very noble Dinner by the Bishop of Straßburgh. We are here much encouraged by the promises we have, of being assisted from abroad in case of a Rupture.

Hague, July 30. The States of Holland are still assembled, and have, as we are told, at present before them, several matters of great importance, and amongst others, that concerning the forbidding the Importation of some sort of Wines, in which those of Amsterdam, have as is said, already declared their resolution, so that it is thought, they may suddainly come to a determination in it.

Colonell Bampheld continues in Town, but intends to return in few dayes for Cologne; in the mean time we cannot yet hear with any certainty of the forming of an Army, nor of what Troops are intended to be sent hence towards Cologne, from whence all our Letters tell us, of the great appearance there seems to be, that after all, things will come to a Breach.

The Velt Marshal Wurtz is still here, and on Tuesday next we expect Prince Maurits here from Cleve. From Hamborough they write, that notwithstanding their fears and apprehensions of being attacked abate dayly, they continue to make all necessary preparations for their defence and security in case of any accident.
