

Berlin, June 10, N. S. The King set out for Prussia about One a Clock this Morning: The Prince of Anhalt, Lieutenant General Grumbkau, and the other Officers who are to attend his Majesty this Journey, were gone before. Letters from Riga of the 1st Instant say the Czar was pretty well recovered from a late Indisposition, which had been a very violent Fever, but no Day was then fixed for his Departure; as for the Duke of Holstein's Marriage, it continued in the same Uncertainty, the Czar declining to come to any Resolution though he had been extremely pressed to it.

Paris, June 18. M. d'Armenonville, Secretary of State, having sent lately for the Wardens of the Company of Grocers of this City, and required them to withdraw their Accusations against the Duke de la Force, they declined to comply with his Demand until they had consulted their Lawyers about it, which having done, 'tis said they have been advised not to desist, but to make good their Charge against the said Duke, whose Memorial which he presented lately to the King, will be examined in the next Council of Regency. It is reported the Pope has declared he will grant hereafter, without any Difficulty, the Bulls for the vacant Benefices in this Kingdom, to all the Persons the King shall think fit to name, without Regard to their being reputed Janfenists or not; and as he has already sent to the Cardinal de Noailles the Bull for a Jubilee, People flatter themselves, that the Disputes about the Constitution will soon entirely cease.
