Falmouth, July 29.

THe 2^d instant arriv'd here the Little Providence of this place, laden with Salt from Roche, the Master tells us, that some days before his departure from thence, there came in a small French man of War of 16 Guns, with a Sally man of War of 8 Guns, which they had taken on the Coast of Barbary.

Lime, August 1. The 29 instant came into this Port the Mary, and Samuel, both of this place, the first from Morlaix, and the other from Crofcque; by that from Morlaix, we are told, that some days before she came thence, there arriv'd the Duke de Chaulnes, Governor of Britaine, in order to the assembling the States of that Province at Vitri; that he had been received with much Ceremony, and treated the time of his stay there, with extraordinary magnificence. This day arriv'd the Greyhound of this place from Barbados.

Copenhagen, July 18. It is confidently reported that the Queen is with Child, which occasions a general rejoycing here; the 12 Men of War, which ly ready here to attend his Majesty in his passage to Norway, are ordered, as is said, to be laid up again, the King having put off that journey till next Spring, when the Queen, we are told, will likewise accompany him thither.

We hear at present nothing farther of any design agst Hamborough.

Miln July 22. Our Governor the Duke d' Osuna having lately had advice of the arrival of the Count de Fuenalida, together with his Lady at Genova on their way hither, immediately ordered several Companies of his Guards, to march towards the Frontiers of that Republick, to be ready to receive and attend them on their way, farther charging all Officers and Governours of such places they were to pass, not to be wanting to show them all imaginable respect; on Friday last the said Count arriv'd at Pavia, and this evening is expected here, several persons of the chief est quality being gone hence, to meet and accompany him hither.

We are told, that the Count Casati is going in quality of Ambassador, to Switzerland from the Crown of Spain. The Squadron of Gallies under the command of the Duke of Tursi, have order'd to sail towards Italy, to joyne with the Gallies of that Kingdom.

Stockholme, July 22. The Senators are at present all in Town, excepting the Rix Chancellor, and some few others, who are likewise dayly expected, in order to their publick meeting here. Their Majesties are still diverting themselves in the Country, and have not yet resolv'd when they will be here again.

Here is arriv'd on the part of the Northern Company, lately established at Paris, two of their Directors, to endeavor the settling a Trade for French Wines, Brandy, Salt, Paper, and other commodities of that Kingdom, on condition they may be imported in French Vessels, and they return again with Coper, Iron, and other Merchandises, of the growth and manufacture of this Country; what success their negotiations may meet with, we long to know; though it be generally thought, they will meet with many difficulties.

Warsaw, July 25. Some days since arriv'd here Nazotshin, Ambassador from the Czar of Muscovy, a person of great esteem and authority in that Court, and this day he had his first solemn Audience of his Majesty; what his errand may be farther, then the confirming the present Peace between his Master and this Crown, we yet know not; it is said, that their Majesties intend in few days to begin their journey towards Leopol, every thing being now making ready, with all the hast imaginable in order to it; in the meantime we are told, that the Nobility of the respective Palatinats will not come into the Field themselves, but are with the Kings leave raising of Men, both Horse and Foot proportionable to what the present posture of affairs seem to stand in need of, for the defence and security of the Ukrain; For notwithstanding we have sufficient ground to suspect the designs and practices of some of the Cossacks under Dorosensko, together with the Tartars, and perhaps the Turks, to give us some disturbance this Summer, yet that danger looks not so great; as to require as yet a general arming of the Nobility, who are resolv'd however, to be ready to appear in Arms on any extraordinary occasion.

Here are fresh Letters in Town which give occasion to believe, that the Rebellion in Moscovy, is as great as it ever was, and that he which lately suffer'd at Mocho, was not the true Stephan Radzi the great Rebel, but a counterfeit, which thought it seems very improbable, yet it meets with some that give credit thereto, and leaves generally an uncertainty in all, till we have farther confirmation of our late news from thence.

Vienna, July 26. On Sunday last arriv'd here the Count Rothal, together with the rest of the Commissioners from Presburgh, who have since given in their report of the present condition of the affairs of that Country, to the great satisfaction of his Imperial Majesty.

We are told of Eight persons more that are condemn'd to suffer death at Presburgh, concerning the late Rebellion; those that were brought Prisoners hither upon the same account, continue still in their friends and relations soliciting in the interim no endeavors, for the obtaining the Emperors pardon.

It is said, that several Regiments are order'd to march immediately towards Hungary, upon advice, as is thought, of some Turks moving that way, though in the meantime, the Turkish Aga here, upon all occasions assures these Ministers, that their fears and allarmes are without any ground, and that they ought not to do his Master that injustice, as to doubt the sincerity of his intentions, for the maintaining the established Peace and Friendship. The said Envoy hath at length, notwith-
