T the Court at Kenfington, the 8th Day of | December 1726.

PRESENT,

The King's most Excellent Majesty in Countil.

His Majesty in Council was this Day pleased to appoint the following Sheriffs, viz.

Somerset, Edward Dyke, Jun. Esq; Stafford, William Robins, Esq; Wilts, William Coleman, Esq;

Stockholm, Nov. 16. The Commission for the Tryal of Count Welling being finally fettled with the Consent of the several Orders, one of the Chambers of the chief Court of Justice is appointed for those Commissioners to sit in; and they have had some Meetings to examine into former Precedents, in order to regulate the Method of their Proceedings; which it is faid they have now fettled, and that the Pifcal's Accusation is also ready to be exhibited against him; but the whole Proceeding is like to be kept fo secret, that nothing of it can well be known before they come to pass Sentence upon him. Notwithstanding it was given out upon the Muscovite Ambassadour's first coming hither, that he designed forthwith to press for his Audiences at Court, yet he has not hitherto so much as notified his Arrival, either to the President of the Chancery, or to any of the foreign Ministers; though he has passed some Hours every Day with Count Freytag the Imperial Minister. In the mean time, the said Muscovite Ambaffadour has bought of the Countess Dowager Sparre, for 5000 Rixdollars, a very fine Coach made at Paris when the late Senatour her Husband was Ambassadour in France about six Years ago.

Hague, Dec. 13, N. S. The States of Holland were assembled Yesterday till Five of the Clock in the Afternoon, and being all unanimously difposed for the proposed second Augmentation of Troops and the other Particulars contained in the last Petition of the Council of State, 'tis reckoned that this Affair is as good as concluded. The faid States will continue their Assembly next Week, and the Admiralties are here likewife, in order to fettle the Maritime Affairs.
