Windsor, September 29.

IS Majesty this Day assumed His Royal Stall as Sovereign of the most Noble Order of the Garter, and made His Offering in the Chapel of

The following Knights Companions were present at this Solemnity, and in their several Stalls, according to this Scheme of their Situation, and according to their Seniorities

by Election. Duke of Argyll.

Duke of Kent. Duke of Dorset. Duke of Newcastle. Duke of Graston. Duke of Bolton. Viscount Townshend. Sir Robert Walpole.

Some Time before His Majesty came, the Poor Knights founded within this College placed themselves in the North Isle of the Chapel, standing there two and two, according to their Seniority, habited in their Mantles.

Next unto them stood, in the like Method, the Prebendaries of the Church of Windsor, in their Mantles.

Then the Pursevants of Arms, invested in Taberts of the Sovereign's Arms; the Heralds in like Taberts, and with their Collars of S S.

Garter King of Arms, robed in his Mantle, and with his Jewel and Scepter; and upon his Left Hand, the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, carrying that Ensign, and in his Mantle, and with his Jewel. The Knights Companions invested themfelves in their Mantles of blue Velvet, and Collars of the Order, having the Image of St. George pendent garnished with Diamonds and other Inrichments; having their Caps of black Velvet adorned with flately Plumes of white Feathers, with black and white Sprigs grifing in the midst of them; and with their Garters. All the Persons here mentioned wore Mourning under their Robes of Ceremony.

The Sovereign, apparelled in Purple, a-lighted from His Chair at the Entry on the East Side of the Chapel, and proceeded to the Chapter-House, where the Knights Companions made their Reverences unto His Majefly, who saluted them.

The Sword of State was carried before His Majesty by the Duke of St. Albans, who stopt at the Door of the Chapter-House.

The Sovereign was there immediately has bited with the Mantle and Collar, and had the Cap put on.

The Poor Knights removed from their Station, beginning the Procession to the Choir, which they entered going two and two, the Juniors first; and coming to the Middle thereof, they in a Body together made their Reverences, first to the Altar, and then to the Sovereign's Stall, and thence passed up to the Steps near the Altar, and there divided themselves on both Sides, the Juniors flanding nearest to the Rails, one below the

The Prebendaries, going two and two, entered into the Middle of the Choir, made the like double Obeysances in a Body jointly, and dividing themselves, went into the lower Range of Seats, where they all stood until the Companions were placed in their Stalls, and the Officers of the Order seated on Their Forms; except only two of the Prebendaries, who proceeded up to the Altar to receive the Atchievements.

Then the Officers of Arms, in t 4 sanner before express'd, enter'd and made the like Reverences, and dividing themselves near to the Steps of the Altar, stood on each side next to the Poor Knights, leaving such a spacious Distance in the Middle of the Isle, that the Altar was in full View.

Which being done, Sir Robert Walpole the Junior Knight enter'd, and in the middle made his Reverences, first to the Altar, then to the Sovereign in his Stall, and repeated the same in the Place opposite to his Stall, and took his Station under his own proper Banner, where he continued until the Hatchments of the late Sovereign were offered.

Then the Viscount Townshend, the Duke of Bolton, the Duke of Grafton, the Duke of Newcaitle, the Duke of Dorset, entered the Choir each singly, and the Duke of Kent with the Duke of Argyll, being Com-panions placed in opposite Stalls, entered to gether; and all made the like Obeifances and retired under their Banners.

Then the Officers of the Order present, Garter and Black Rod, made the like Reverences before their own Seat or Form.

The Sword of State was carried by the Duke of Sr. Albans, who held it erect, during the Solemnity, under the Royal Stall.

The Sovereign, upon his Entry into the Choir, made his Reverence towards the Altar only, and ascending into his Royal Stall, made a fecond Reverence to the Altar, and seated himself.

His

His Majesty's Train was born from the Chapter-House by the eldest Son of the Duke of Grafton, and the eldest Son of the Earl of Grantham, and the Master of the Robes, who placed themselves near to the Steps of the Royal Stall.

Then Garter went into the Middle of the Choir, and made his usual Reverences, and forthwith repaired to the Place where the Hatchments of the late Sovereign were depofited, and taking up the Banner, held it almost rolled up.

Two of the Superior Officers of Arms then met, and after making the accustomed Obeyfances in the Middle of the Choir, repaired to the Duke of Argyll and the Duke of Kent, the two Senior Knights present, who removed from their Stations, and receiving the Banner between them, made their double Reverences, and being preceded by the Officers of Arms, carried it with the lower End of the Staff foremost, and making their Reverences again at the first Step towards the Altar, proceeded up to the Rails, where at the uppermost Step, the Officers of Arms dividing themselves upon each side, and bowing to the Knights, these Knights raised the Point of the Banner upwards, and making their Reverences to the Altar only, presented it upon their Knees, from whom the Probends received it, and placed it upright at the South End of the Altar, and then these Knights were conducted back again (making the same Reverences) to their first Stations under their own Banners.

Two of the next Officers of Arms met, and with the like Obeylances in all Respects, repaired to the two next Knights in Seniority the ke of Dorset and Duke of Newcastle, who receiving from Garter King of Arms, the Sword with the Pomel or Hilt upwards, with the like Ceremonies offered the same, and then were reconducted in the same Man-

Two of the next Officers of Arms then met in like manner, and repaired to the two next Knights, the Duke of Grafton and the Duke of Bolton; who received and offered the Helm and Crest, with the same Solemnities.

While the Atchievements of the late Sovereign were thus offering, the Organs played.

Garter King of Arms then went into the Middle of the Choir, and after his wonted Reverences, turn'd himself to the Duke of Argyll and the Duke of Kent, the Senior Knights being Companions, who making their double Obeylances under their Banners, ascended their respective Stalls at the same Time by the nearest Passages, and being thus in their Stalls repeated their Reverences.

And in this Manner, when Garter turned himself to the respective Knights, according to their Seniorities in the Order, all of them · fingly made their Entries up into their Stalls, and Reverences with the like Ceremonies, in Succession according to the Position of the Stalls; the senior Knights first.

Then the Officers of the Order, Garter and Gentleman-Usher of the Black Rod, after their Obeylances retired to their Seat or Form

The Officers of Arms came down in a Body, made their Reverences, and placed themfelves on each lide of the Choir near to the Entry into it.

The Poor Knights came down in like man-ner, and retired to the Places before their

The Divine Offices then began, and a Sermon was preach'd.

When the Offertory Sentence, Let your Light so shine, &c was read, the Organs playing, the Officers of the Wardrobe spread a Carpet upon the Steps, going up to the Rails of the Altar, and the Poor Knights at this time removed, proceeding two and two, and making their double reverences in a Body, and placed themselves near the Steps of the Altar, as at their first Entry.

The Officers of Arms did the like, and blaced themselves on each side near the poor Knights.

The Usher of the Black Rod, after making his Reverences, went up to the Rails of the Altar, and standing upon the Right Hand, received from the Yeoman of the Wardrobe a rich Carpet of Cloth of Gold, which with the Assistance of the Yeoman he spread upon the other Carpet; and then the Yeoman delivered unto him a Cushion for the Sovereign to kneel upon, and both of them took the Affay thereof, and then the Usher of the Black Rod laid it down.

During this Time Garter King of Arms arose and made his double Obeysances, and summoned all the Knights to descend from their Stalls, beginning with the Juniors, pointing to each with the Banner of his Scepter, which he held in his Right Hand.

The Knights who wanted their Companions, and the two Senior Knights who were Companions, being all thus summoned in their Courses, immediately made their double Reverences in their Stalls, and then came down into the middle of the Choir, where the same Obeysances were repeated, and stood all of them under their own Banners.

When the Knights were all thus placed, the Sovereign making his Reverence to the Altar, descended from his Stall, and at the Foot of the Steps thereof made another Reverence to the Altar, and then proceeded to the Steps of the Altar, attended as follows.

Garter Principal King of Arms.

The Duke of St. Albans, with the Sword of State.

The Sovereign, his Train born as before.

The Duke of Argyll, the senior Knight, who was appointed to deliver the Offering to the Sovereign, came from under his Banner, with the usual Reverences, and went a little behind his Majesty on the right Side.

When the Sovereign came against the Stall belonging to the Duke of Grafton, Lord Chamberlain of the Houshold, the Duke, in vertue of that Office, attended upon his Majesty a little behind on the left Side.

At the Steps afcending to the Altar, the Sovereign made his Reverence to the Altar, and Garter and the Nobleman who carried the Sword retiring on one Side, the Sove-reign being upon the uppermost Step next the Rails, repeated his Reverence, and taking.

off his Cap, kneeled down, and the Usher of the Black Rod taking Aslay of the Offering, delivered it upon his Knee to the Duke of Argyll, who also kneeling gave it to the Sovereign, who put it, (being Gold and Silver) into the Bason held by two Prebendaries standing within the Rails.

The Sovereign then arole, put on his Cap, and made forthwith his Reverence to the Altar, and repeated it, at the Bottom of the Steps, and was conducted back in the same Manner; the Lord Chamberlain in the Return, when he came to his own Stall, retired under his Banner, making his Obeylances; and the Sovereign at the Steps of his Royal Stall made his Reverence to the Altar, and repeated the same after he ascended his Stall, and then lat down.

The Attendants upon the Sovereign in this Oblation made the like Reverences to the Altar, without any Obeylance towards the Sovereign's Stall, because the Sovereign was in the Procession. The Duke of Argyll, who delivered the Offering to the Sovereign, returned to the Place under his Banner, where he made the usual Reverences.

During the Time of the Sovereign's Return to his Stall, the Officers of the Wardrobe removed the upper rich Carpet and Cu-fhion whereon the Sovereign kneeled, and the Usher of the Black Rod returned, making his double Reverences in the Middle of the Choir, and stood before his Seat or Form.

Then two of the eldest Officers of Arms came down into the Middle of the Choir, and making their Reverences, went to the two eldest Knights, being Companions, and conducted them with the same Ceremonies to the Altar, where they offered in the same Manner, and were reconducted through the Stalls, (being then empty) who ascending, made their Reverences upon their first Entry into these Stalls, and passed on to their own Stalls, where they did the same, and then sat down.

The two next Heralds, with like Ceremonies conducted all the other Knights, beginning still with the Senior by Election, who all offered fingly, because their Companions in the opposite Stalls were absent.

The Companions being all thus releated in their Stalls, and the Officers of the Order seated upon their Forms, Divine Service proceeded; which being ended, the Prebendaries who officiated at the Altar were conducted by the Verger to their Seats.

The Poor Knights continued near the Rails of the Altar, and the Officers of Arms near Garter then arose, and in the former Manher summoned down the Knights from their Stalls, beginning with the Junior Knight, who defeended with the former Ceremonies, and stood under their respective Banners.

The Officers of the Order stood before their Forms:

The Poor Knights then came down two and two, and in a Body made their Obeyfances, and proceeded out of the Choir.

The Prebendaries came out of their Seats, and with the same Ceremonies, followed.

Then the Purse vants and Heralds in the like Method:

The Knights whole Companions were ablent, fingly, and the two eldest Knights together, after making the like Obeylances to the Altar, and then to the Sovereign in his Stall, proceeded out of the Choir, the Juniors going first.

Then the Officers of the Order. The Sword of State born by the Duke of St. Albans.

The Sovereign making his Reverence to the Altar, descended from his Royal Stall, and at the Bottom of the Steps repeated his Reverence, and proceeded out of the Choir, his Train being carried as at his Entry. ...

The Procession was to the Chapter-House, where his Majesty was disrobed.

Her Majesty, with his Royal Highness the Duke, her Royal Higness the Princess Royal, and their Royal Highnesses the Princesses Caroline, Mary, and Louisa, were present, Her Majesty under a Canopy erected over a Seat placed upon the South Side of the Steps of the Altar.

Windsor, October 4.
