The Sovereign apparelled in the full Habits and with the Great Collar was received upon his Entry by all the Companions, who made their Reverences to him, and he saluted them. And from thence a Procession was made into the Chapter-House, the junior Knights entering first, then the Officers of the Order, preceeding the Sovereign.

The two Earls the Knights elect retired to Chairs placed for them near to the Entry of the Chapter-House Door.

The Duke retired to a Chair placed in the same Manner, having waiting upon him his Herald Blanc Courfier invested with a Tabart of the Coat of Arms of his Royal Highness, and with his Jewel or Badge.

The Sovereign having seated himself in his Chair in the Chapter-House, his Majesty commanded that John Anstis, jun. should be called in, and that the Oath of the Office of Garter King of Arms should be administered unto him, who having taken it kneeling, his Majesty was pleased to put the Ensign of that Office, hanging at a Gold Chain, about his Neck, and to permit him to kiss his Royal Hand. Garter King of Arms was then commanded by the Sovereign to introduce his Royal Highness the Duke from the Chair, where he had reposed himself behind the Altar, who at the Door of the Chapter House was received by the two Senior Companions present the Dukes of Somerset and Argyll, who (with Reverences to the Sovereign) conducted him to the upper End of the Chapter-House, where Garter had before placed the Surcoat, Girdle, and Sword.

Then Garter was commanded to introduce the Earl of Burlington, who was received, conducted, and invested with the same Ceremonies as the Earl of Chesterfield.

The Duke and these two Knights elect continued in the Chapter-House, while the Procession was made from thence into the Choir of the Chapel; in this Manner.

The poor Knights moved from their Station in the North Isle, going by Pairs, down to the Western-End of that Isle, and then passing up thro' the middle Isle enter'd into the Choir, and in the middle thereof, they in a joint Body made their Reverences first to the Altar, and turning about in a Body, made their Obeisances towards the Sovereign's Stall, and passing up to the Steps near to the Altar, there divided themselves and stood on each side one below the other, the Juniors nearest to the Rails.

The Prebendaries stayed at the Door of the Choir until the poor Knights had thus placed themselves, and then entered by Pairs, making the like double Reverences in a Body together, and entered into their Seats under the Stalls, wherein they all stood (except two that attended at the Altar,) until all the Knights Companions had taken their Stalls, and the Officers of the Order were seated upon their Forms.

While the Prebendaries were thus entering into their Seats, the Officers of Arms according to their Degrees entered into the Choir, made their double Reverences in a Body jointly, and passed up near to the Rails next to the poor Knights on each Side.

Then the Knights Companions, according to the Situation of their Stalls, those in the lower Stalls entering first, either by Pairs, or single when the Companion in the opposite Stall was absent, entered into the Choir, and being come a little way beyond the Sovereign's Stall, made double Reverences in the middle of the Choir, and being come up against their respective Stalls, repeated their Obeisances, and retired under their Banners, where they stood.

The Junior Knight or Knights thus standing under their Banners, the next Junior Knight or Knights enter'd in like Manner, made the like Reverences at their Entries, jointly when they were Fellows, and opposite to their Banners, and retired under them, where they stood; which same Ceremonies were performed by all the Knights present, the Juniors entering first, either by Pairs, or single, according to their Stalls.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales entered with the like Reverences, and stood under his Banner.

The Black Rod, Garter, and Register of the Order entered in breast, and made their Reverences, and retired to their Places, standing before their Forms.

The Chancellor and Prelate did the same.

The Duke of St. Albans carried the Sword of State, and held it erect before the Sovereign during the greatest Part of the Solemnity, his Majesty being pleased to grant him Leave sometimes to repose himself; the Vice-Chamberlain went upon the left Hand of this Duke, who carried the Sword; and they both stood on the Steps before or under the Sovereign's Stall, the Sword of State on the right side thereof.

The Sovereign at his Entry into the Chapel made his Reverence to the Altar only, his Train being born by the eldest Sons of the Dukes of Grafton and Dorset and the Master of the Robes, who (when his Majesty had ascended his Stall, and made his Reverence therein to the Altar) placed themselves upon the Steps going up to the Sovereign's Stall.

The Sovereign being thus placed, Garter went into the middle of the Choir, and after his double Reverences, having his Rod or Scepter in his hand, turned himself to the Prince of Wales, who thereon came from under his Banner banner into the middle of the Choir, and there made his Reverence to the Altar, and to the Sovereign in his Stall, and then went up the nearest Way to his stall, where he repeated the same Reverences, and then sat down.

All the other Companions continued standing under their Banners.

The Prelate was conducted by the Serjeant of the Vestry to the Altar, who made the like Reverences, and two Prebendaries went likewise conducted thither in like manner by the Verger.

Garter then went into the middle of the Choir with the usual Obeisances, and repaired to the Place under the Stall of the late Duke of York, where he had before laid his Hatchments upon a Stool, and took up the Banner, holding it in his Hand almost rolled up, whilst Lion King of Arms and the eldest Provincial King of Arms met, and came down from the Haut-pas near the Rails of the Altar, who having made their Reverences in the middle of the Choir jointly, came to the two senior Knights the Dukes of Somerset and Argyll standing under their Banners, and bowing to them, these Knights thereon came out into the middle of the Choir opposite to their own Stalls, and made their Reverences, then joyned and advanced towards the Place where these Hatchments were laid, where Garter delivered to these two Knights, making a Bow to them, the Banner, which these Knights received and carried with the Point thereof forward a little declining, being preceded by these Officers of Arms; and being advanced to the Degree, or first Step towards the Altar, made their Reverences to the Altar and to the Sovereign, and at the Rails, to the Altar only, and then these Knights kneeling, delivered the Banner to the Prelate, who gave it to the Prebendaries assisting, who placed the same upright at the South End of the Altar. These Knights then descended making the like Reverences, and attended by those Officers of Arms, retired under their Banners. And these Officers of Arms making their double Obeisances in the middle of the Choir, retired to their former Stations.

Then the two next Officers of Arms in Seniority descended in like manner, and came to the next two Senior Knights the Duke of Kent and the Earl of Strafford, who removed from under their Banners, to whom Garter delivered the Sword of the late Duke of York, the Pomel or Hilt held upwards, which was carried up to the Rails of the Altar with the same Ceremonies, and then these Knights descended as the former did, and retired standing under their Banners, and these Officers of Arms returned to their former Stations.

The two next Officers of Arms in Seniority came to the next two Senior Knights present, the Earl of Peterburgh and the Duke of Dorset, to whom Garter delivered the Helm and Crest of the said late Duke of York, which were carried in the same manner, and with the same Ceremonies; and these Knights being returned under their Banners, and the Officers of Arms to their Places,

Garter then went into the middle of the Choir, made his Obeisances, and coming opposite to the Place where he had laid the Hatchments of the late Duke of Devonshire, took up the Banner, and then two Officers of Arms waited upon the abovementioned two Senior Knights, who offered it with the former Ceremonies, and retired under their own Banners.

Two other Officers of Arms waited upon the two next Senior Knights abovementioned, who offered the Sword in the former Method.

Then two other Officers waited upon the two next Knights in Seniority, abovenamed, who carried up the Helm and Crest with the former Ceremonies.

Garter then made his Reverences in the middle of the Choir, and coming opposite to the Place where he had laid the Hatchments of the late Earl of Lincoln,

His Banner was likewise offered by the same two Senior Knights present.

His Sword by the two next Knights in Seniority:

His Helm and Crest by the two Knights next to them in Seniority, in the same manner as the other Hatchments were before carried.

The Knights Companions standing thus under their Banners, during all the time of these Offerings of the Achievements, Garter then went into the middle of the Choir, and making his Reverences turned himself to the Eldest Knight, pointing to him with his Rod, who thereon came from his Station under his Banner into the middle of the Choir opposite to his Stall, and there made his Reverences, and then went up by the nearest way to his Stall, where he repeated his Reverences, and sat down.

Garter repeated the same to the next Senior Knight, and to all other the Companions present in like manner, according to the Situation of their Stalls, which all of them, the Seniors first, entered into through the nearest Passages, with the like Ceremonies, but where the Knights were Companions in opposite Stalls they removed at the same Time from under their Banners, and after making their joint Reverences in the middle of the Choir, at the same Time entered into their Stalls.

All the Knights Companions being thus seated in their Stalls, Garter after the usual Obeisances summoned down the two Senior Knights present, the Dukes of Somerset and Argyll, appointed by the Sovereign to install his Royal Highness the Duke, who after making Reverences in their Stalls descended, and

In the middle of the Choir made their Obeifances, and retired under their Banners.

Garter, and the Officers of Arms then cry'd Largesse once, and retired.

The Banquet was afterwards brought up to the Sovereign's Table with the same Ceremonies; save only that in Place of the Clerks of the Kitchen, the chief Clerk of the Spicery waited in that Place; and the Banquet of the Knights' Companions was also brought up by the Yeomen of the Guard.

Dinner being ended, the Knights Companions arose from their Tables, and the Juniors went off first, being followed by all in that Order, who placed themselves again on the right Side of the Hall one below another, and Grace being said by the Prelate, having washed, the Knights all together made their Reverences to the Sovereign, who put off his Cap, and re-saluted them.

Then all the Knights and the Officers of the Order present, proceeded before the Sovereign back again to the Presence Chamber, in the former Method; where the Sovereign having saluted them, they all departed to their Lodgings.
