To the Right Honourable the Commissioners appointed by Act of Parliament, the Twelfth of Queen Anne, for examining Proposals for discovering of Longitude; the following easy, plain, and hitherto unexceptionable Method for making a compleat useful Perpetual Motion, was published on Monday the 19th of November, 1731, in the Daily Advertiser, by the Inventor Cornelius Andrew Bruce, in the English Establishment of Half Pay, is most humbly submitted to Consideration, viz.

MAKE three Brass Wheels with a high Number of long Teeth, suppose the middle Wheel Five Inches Diameter, and the two End Wheels both of the same Size, and as near the middle Wheel's Diameter as is proper to work together; fix these three Wheels in a square Brass Frame in the following Manner; let the Pivot of the middle Wheel into a Groove made cross the Frame, upon this Wheel put on a Frame like to that of a Garden Roter, then draw a perpendicular Line cross the Groove; and make the End Pevit-Holes, one on the Right, the other on the Left Side of the Line, so that the middle Wheel may have a small proper Diagonal Bearing on the End Wheels; then through a cross

Frame against the middle Wheel, let a Screw pass that shall take hold of the Center of the Frame-Handle placed on the middle Wheel, by which you draw the middle Wheel in the Groove a small Matter more than the Space of the Distance of one Wheel's Tooth from another, by which Pressure the End Wheels give Way, and this remov'd Center of the middle Wheel always retaining the same Place it is drawn to, viz. a little more than the Space between two of the Wheels Teeth; therefore it is judged they will perpetually move: But if the Screw should be objected against, it may be taken away, and either a Spring or a Weight apply'd in its Place. P. S. The Workman I employ'd to make the above Machine absconds seeing me, although I was to give him Ten Guineas for about Two Days Work.
