HIS Majesty having granted a Commission to several Companions of the most noble Order of the Garter, for the Installation of his most Serene Highness the Prince of Orange, by his Proctor Sir Charles Wager, Knight, one of the Lords of the Privy Council, Admiral of the Blue, and first Commissioner of the Admiralty; and likewise for the personal Installations of the most noble William Cavendish Duke of Devonshire, Lord Steward of the Household, and of the Right Honourable Spencer Compton Earl of Wilmington, Lord President of the Council, lately elected into that most noble Fraternity; six of the Commissioners thus appointed, and hereafter particularly named, being all apparalled in the full Habits of the Order, met in the great Chamber in the Dean's Lodgings; to which Place the Duke of Devon and Earl of Wilmington came in the Under Habits, each carrying in his Hand his Cap adorned with Diamonds and Pearls of great Value, together with the Feathers and Horn Tops: From thence a Procession was made to the Chapter-House in the following Method. The Arms Knights in their Mantles, going by Pairs, began it, and next to them followed the Prebends, two and two, then the Officers of Arms in like Manner in their Tabarts; the Earl of Wilmington and Duke of Devon proceeded in Breast; the Register, Garter King of Arms, and Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, Officers of the Order, in their Crimson Sattin Mantles, with their proper Badges, Garter carrying the Sovereign's Commission; then the six Knights Companions Commissioners, in their compleat Habits and Ensigns. Upon the Entry into the North Isle of the Chapel, the Proctor of his Highness the Prince of Orange, with the two other Knights elect, placed themselves upon Chairs set in the Passage behind the Altar, while the Officers of the Order proceeded into the Chapter House, where the six Knights Companions the Commissioners seated themselves according to the Seniority of their Elections into the Order, and conformable to the Situation of their Stalls in the Chapel, Garter forthwith with Reverence presented the Commission to his Grace the Duke of Dorset, the Senior Companion and Commissioner, who gave it to the Register, who after reading presented the same to the other Lords Commissioners, empowering them, or any two or more of them, to do and perform every thing that is required by the Statutes and Decrees of the Order for perfecting these Installations.

Garter was then commanded to conduct the Proctor of his Highness the Prince of Orange into the Chapter House, who was received at the Door, and brought next to the Place where the Mantle of his Highness had been laid upon a Crimson Velvet Cushion.

Garter was then sent to conduct the Duke of Devonshire to the Door of the Chapter House, where his Grace being received by the two Junior Commissioners, was afterwards invested with the Surcoat of the Order by the two Senior Commissioners, the Register reading the proper Admonitions; and then the Belt with the Sword was buckled on: Which being done, all the same Ceremonies were observed with relation to the Earl of Wilmington. The Proctor and these Knights elect remained in the Chapter House while a Procession was made into the Chapel to offer the Hatchments of the late Duke of Cleveland, and of the late Earl of Pembroke, the deceased Knights, in the following Manner, that of the late Duke of York having been formerly offered.

The Poor Knights entred two and two, who being come to the middle of the Choir, made their Reverences all together, first to the Altar, and then towards the Sovereign's Stall, and proceeded up near to the Rails of the Altar, where they placed themselves on either Side of them.

The Prebends entred in the same Manner, and all stood below the Poor Knights, excepting two, who went up to the Altar to receive the Hatchments to be offered.

The Officers of Arms in the like Method, and stood below the Prebends on both Sides.

The Officers of the Order entred with the same Ceremonies, and stood before their Seats or Forms.

Then the six Knights Companions the Commissioners entred, the Juniors by Election going first, that is to say:

The Earl of Burlington proceeded single, because his Companion in the opposite Stall was absent.

Sir Robert Walpole, having on the Right Hand his Companion the Duke of Richmond.

The Duke of Newcastle alone, for the Reason above-mentioned.

The Duke of Montagu, having the Duke of Dorset on the Right Hand.

The Junior Knight Companion entring, and having made his Reverences in the Middle of the Choir to the Altar, and then towards the Sovereign's Stall, retired and stood in the Area under his Banner ; which Ceremonies were severally repeated by all the other Companions Commissioners, either in Pairs, or singly, according to the before-mentioned Scheme.

in

Garter then went into the Middle of the Choir, and having made his Reverences, repaired to the Place where the Hatchments of the late Duke of Cleveland had been laid upon a Form, and taking up the Banner, the Provincial Kings of Arms then met, made their Obeissances, and passed down to the two Senior Commissioners the Dukes of Dorset and Montagu, who thereupon joining, made their usual Reverences; and having received the Banner, carried the same almost rolled up, the Point forward a little declining, to the Steps of the Altar, where having made their Reverences to the Altar only, they kneeling delivered it to the Prebends, who placed it upright at the South End of the Altar; and then these Knights having repeated the like Reverences as they had made in their coming up, returned to their former Stations under their Banners, being conducted and waited upon by these Kings of Arms.

The two eldest Heralds met in the like Manner, and with the same Obeissances repaired to the Dukes of Newcastle and Richmond, to whom Garter delivered the Sword of the said late deceased Duke of Cleveland, the Pomel or Hilt upward, which was thus carried, and offered in the same Manner. And then the two next Heralds repaired to Sir Robert Walpole, and to the Earl of Burlington, who offered the Helm and Crest with the like Rites.

The Achievements of the late Earl of Pembroke were all offered with the same Solemnities in every Particular.

Which being done, and the usual Obeissances being made, the Return to the Chapter House was in the Order specified above; and from thence a Procession was made thro' the North Isle of the Chapel to the West End of it up into the Choir in the former Manner, save that Garter, being in the Middle between the Register and Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, carried upon a crimson Velvet Cushion edged and tasselled with Gold, the Mantle for the Prince of Orange; and that the two Senior Knights and Commissioners conducted Sir Charles Wager, Proctor or Deputy for his Highness the Prince of Orange, between them. The four Junior Knights Companions, upon their Entry into the Choir, retired under their Banners; and the two Senior Knights led the Proctor to the Seat under the Stall of his Principal, where the Register read the Oath required in such Cases for the Observation of the Statutes under the Reservations stipulated; and thereon these two Senior Commissioners conducted the Proctor into the Stall, where they put the Mantle over his Left Shoulder or Arm, in such manner that the Cross embroidered with the Garter might appear; and then they seated him in the Stall; who arising, made his Reverences; and these Knights having embraced him, and congratulated him in the Name of his Principal, they retired to their Stations under their Banners; and the Proctor, during the remaining Part of the Ceremony, held the Mantle in the Form specified.

A Procession was then again made to the Chapter House, and a Return from thence, by the nearest Way, into the Choir, where the two Senior Knights, having between them the Duke of Devonshire habited in his Surcoat, and girded with the Sword, and carrying his Cap in his Hand, conducted him into the Seat under the lowest Stall on the Sovereign's Side, where the Duke, laying his Right Hand upon the New Testament, took the usual Oath for the Observation of the Statutes; and being then conducted up into his Stall, was there invested with the Mantle, Hood, Great Collar and George thereto pendent, while the Register read the accustomed Admonitions; and these Knights having delivered the Statute Book, placed the Cap with the Feathers upon his Grace's Head, and seated him in his Stall, who arising made his Obeissances; and then these Knights having embraced and congratulated him, left him in the Stall, and descended into the Area of the Chapel, standing under their Banners.

Then the Alms Knights, Prebends, and Officers of Arms, returned towards the Chapter House, and the Officers of the Order, and the Knights Commissioners entred ino it, from whence the Right Honourable the Earl of Wilmington was conducted in the like manner into the Chapel, and installed in the lowest Stall, on the Prince's Side with the same Ceremonies.

During all this Time the Organ played; then Divine Service begun, and the Offertory Sentence being read, the Poor Knights made their Reverences, placing themselves on both Sides, as near as they could to the Rails of the Altar, the Officers of Arms did the same; then Garter rising from his Seat made his Obeissances in the Middle of the Choir, and summoned the Earl of Wilmington and the Duke of Devonshire, the Companions in the lowest Stalls, to descend; who after making their Reverences in their Stalls, came down into the Choir, where they meeting, repeated their Reverences together, and placed themselves under their Banners; and then all the other Knights present, and the Proctor of his Highness, were summoned in their Turns, according to the Situation of the Stalls, who all descended either singly or by Pairs, according to the Method above described.

All the Knights and the Proctor being thus under their Banners, the Provincial Kings of Arms repaired to the Proctor, and conducted him to the Offering, who made the usual Reverences under the Banner of his Principal, and in the Middle of the Choir, and at the Rails of the Altar, and kneeling offered Gold and Silver, putting it into the Basin held by two of the Prebends; and then rising up made the like Obeissances, and returned to the Stall of his Principal.

The like Offering was made by the Dukes of Dorset and Montagu in breast, having the two senior Heralds waiting upon them.

Then the Duke of Newcastle by himself; and afterwards the Dukes of Richmond and

Sir Robert Walpole in breast; then the Earl of Burlington by himself; and last of all the Duke of Devonshire and Earl of Wilmington together, offered in the Manner and for the Reasons above mentioned.

The Knights Companions and the Proctor being thus returned to their Stalls, remained there until Divine Service was ended, and then were all summoned to descend into the Area under their respective Banners, according to the Method recited above, that a Procession might be made down to the West Gate of the Chapel, and through the South Isle, and out of the Door there, up to the Lodgings in the high Castle, but the Rain prevented it; so as the Return was made through the North Isle into the Dean's Lodgings, wherein, after the Drums and Trumpets, the Poor Knights went, and next to them the Prebends, after whom the Officers of Arms followed, and then the Officers of the Order went immediately before the Two new intalled Knights, being followed by the Six other Companions, and last of all the Proctor of the Prince of Orange, from whom the Mantle was received when he came to the Outside of the Door of the Chapel: And all these proceeded in the same Rank, and Manner, as they had formerly entered into the Choir.

There was a splendid Dinner in the Guard Chamber, at the Expence of the Sovereign, where the Companions dined in their full Habits. Upon bringing in the Second Course, Garter, with the Officers of Arms attending, proclaimed the Styles of the Duke of Devonshire and Earl of Wilmington; the Styles of his Highness the Prince of Orange having been proclaimed at the Time of his Investiture, according to the Custom in such Cases.
