We do therefore publish and declare, That the

God Save the King.

Viennä, March 21. The Prussians, after passing the Mark at Goding, went only to Scalitz, from whence the Hungarian Infantry retired, after having been abandoned by the Cavalry ; but upon their halting between Scalitz and Hollitz, the Prussians in their Turn abandoned Scalitz, without giving themselves Time to take away all the Magazine ; so that the Hungarians are again in Possession of Scalitz, and are thought to be by this Time joined by a Part of Cohary's, and by all Lobkowitz's Regiment of Horse from Transylvania. The Detachment from Count Khevenhuller's Army is arrived at Budeweis, and some affirm, that the Body which was advanced to Waidhoven and Hoorn, is returned to Newhaus. In the mean while the French are marched in three Columns from Piseck ; two of which are supposed to have taken the Route of Pilsen, to besiege Egra ; and the third is marched to Prague, where the French are said to be barricading themselves in the Manner they did at Lintz. Count Khevenhuller has given Notice, that he will burn every Magazine that he shall hear of to be preparing in Suabia, which his Hussars shall look upon as collected for the Sake of the French.

Kellheim, March 24. Lieutenant-General Feldt-marshal Baron Berenclau having, with a Body of 3000 Men, passed the Danube at Dec-kendorff, proceeded on his March up the River with great Expedition, after having passed the Regon, the Naab and the Aldmil, which were very much swelled by the Melting of the Snow.
He passed through several Desfilés so narrow, that One hundred Men might have stopt a whole Army ; and notwithstanding the great Number of the Enemy that were cantoned thereabouts, advanced with so much Bravery, that upon his Approach, the Bavarian Troops retired also in great Haste from that Place, which had been continually fortifying during three Months, and was provided with a numerous Garrison, Artillery, and Ammunition, and fled to get under the Cannon of Ingolstadt ; and to facilitate their Escape, they broke down the Bridges behind them, which were forthwith repaired. We found here 125000 Portions of Bread, 8000 Portions of Oats, and above 2000 Portions of Hay and Straw, 1000 Barrels of Powder, and other Stores of War. The Enemy abandoned likewise their Hospital at Koesching, where they left 150 Sick-men, who were not in a Condition to march ; the other Sick-men, who en-deavour'd to retire to Ingolstadt, about 500 in Number, were found for the most part dead by the Way, which occasioned a sad Spectacle.
The Enemy have encamped at Meilingen near Ingolstadt, in the best Manner they could.
Their Horse were 2200, and their Foot 3000, consisting of the Regiments of Preisingen, Minuzzi, Moravisky, and Holstein. Most Part of the said Cavalry saved themselves in the Bishoprick of Eichsted. Some thousand Hussars are sent in pursuit of them. The Desertion is very very great amongst the Enemy, and the finest of their Grenadiers arrive here daily. We have likewise an Account, that Feldt-marshal Khevenhuller is making the necessary Dispositions to make himself Master of Straubingen, intending, after the taking of that place, to settle his General Quarters there.

Berlin, March 27, N. S. Upon the Arrival of the Post to Day with the Letters from Petersburg of the 13th Instant, it was reported that Hostilities were again begun between the Muscovites and Swedes, a Body of 5000 Cofacks and Hussars having been detached into the Swedish Finland, after two Days Notice given to the Swedish General Lowenhaupt.

Dresden, March 28. We have here the following Particulars of the late Action between the Austrians and Prussians at Leisch in Moravia, viz. That his Prussian Majesty having detached two Battallions, one to Slapanitz, and the other to Leisch, two small Towns on the East Side of the Zwitzawa, in the Neighbourhood of Brunn, and that General Roth, the Governor of this last Place, sent a Party of 3 or 4000 Men to invest Leisch, but Count Troughses, who commanded that Battallion, refused to surrender; on which the Austrians set Fire to the Town, and drove him into the Castle, and that beginning to burn, he pierced through the Enemy, and gained an adjacent Eminence, where he defended himself till the Battallion from Slapanitz came to his Succour, and then the Austrians retired. The Count, his Major, two Captains, and several Officers were wounded, and they lost about 12 Soldiers. The Saxons have lately lost two Officers, sent as Couriers between this Place and their Army.
