From Saturday June 19. to Tuelday June 22. 1742.

Moscow, May 24, O. S.

N Thursday the 20th Instant Sir Cyril Wich, had a private Audience of the Czarina, in order to present his Credentials as Minister Plenipotentiary from his Britannick Majesty, and was received with all possible Distinction.

From the Camp at Colegara, between Modena and the Panaro, fune 6, N. S.
This Army, in the Opinion of the most experienced Officers, could not be encamped in a more advantageous Situation. The King of Sardinia's Troops have their Right at Spilimberto, near the Mountains, where the Panaro takes its Spring, and extends as far at St. Ambrofio, where they have their Left; At this last Place the Austrian Troops have their Right, and their Left at Navicello and Buonporto: The Country is thick planted with Trees, but what makes it of an easy Desence, and consequently dangerous for the Enemy to attack us, is, that it is cut every where with deep Ditches and Trenches. St. Ambrosio is the Place where the ordinary Ferry to the Panaro, upon the main Road to Bolog-na, is placed. Here the King of Sardinia has thrown two Bridges over that River, and raifed a Redoute at the Head of them on the other Side. Mirshal Traun has a Bridge built with Brick at Navicella, which is likewife intrenched on the other Side. All these Works at the Head of the Bridges above-mentioned, have been undertaken and finished without the least Disturbance or Opposition from the Spaniards, who have not fo much as appeared with the smallest Detachment to alarm the Grand Guard. This has confirm'd both Armies in the Contempt they have for the Spaniards, and makes them eager and impatient to come to an Action with them. In the mean while the Austrian Hussars are continually harrasfing their Posts with small Detachments, and feldom return without Prisoners or some Booty of Horses or Mules: They went some Days ago behind their Camp, as far as the Gates of Bologna, and took two Post Chaises going to the Spanish Army, with a Lieutenant Colonel, two

( Price Two-Pence. )

Captains of Dragoons, and a Commissary, and brought them through By-Roads to the King of Sardinia's Quarters. M. de Montemar advanced on the 30th past from the Samoggia, where he was encamped, to the Borders of the Panaro, and not above two short Miles from us; he placed his Right at Castel Franco, and his Left between San Cefareo and Piumaggo. This Motion, as every other he has made, occasioned a very confiderable Desertion, and in the next Morning, and the Day following, we had above 200 of their Men between Prisoners and Deferters, who all agree, that it is the utmost, if one third Part comes this Way, it being more at Hand for them to get into the Mouritains, or towards the Venetian State, and to make their Escape by the Rear of their Camp, where they cannot be so closely guarded by the Miquelets. What M. de Montemar has lost of this Sort would make a small Army. In nine Days 1170 odd deserted and went through the Town of Parma; besides there are many sick in their Hospitals at Bologna and elsewhere, in so much that it is the general Opinion, their Army, at most, cannot exceed 22000 Men bearing Arms. Marshal Traun has had another Reinforcement sent him of 3600 Croatians, 400 of which are Horse; Part of them is already arrived in their Camp, and the remaining Part, which is in March, will have joined their Army by the latter End of the Week.

Vienna, June 16. There is no News fince the 9th Instant, from Bohemia, but that the pursuit of the French continued; That the Carriages on the Roads, pillaged by Peasants and Hussars, were so numerous as frequently to embarrass the March of the regular Troops that fol-lowed; and that the Ways were filled with wounded, sick, and half famished Soldiers. Breslaw, June 20, N. S. The Earl of Hyndford, Minister Plenipotentiary from his Britannick Majesty, having received by a Courier from Vienna the Queen of Hungary's Ratissications of the Preliminary Articles fign'd here the of Prussia, they were this Morning exchanged in due Form against those of his Prussian Majesty.

The Imperial Mi-Hambourg, June 22. nister Count Bunaw, meets with great Difficulties in his Negociation here with Regard to the Free Gift to the Emperor, and to the appropriating a House in this City to the Use of the Emperor's Minister for the free Exercise of the Roman Catholick Religion.

Dresden, June 24, N. S. What we hear from Bohemia is, that the French Army remains at Prague, and had received most of the Recruits they expected. Prince Charles was the 18th at Pilsen, and march'd from thence the Day following for Rokitzau and Manth, with an Intention, as was believed, to proceed to Prague.
