St. James's, December 21.

The following Address of the Provost, Fellows and Scholars of the College of the Holy and Undivided Trinity of Queen Elizabeth, near Dublin, having been transmitted by his Grace the Duke of Devonshire, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, to his Grace the Duke of Newcastle, one of his Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, has by him been presented to his Majesty, who was pleased to receive the same very graciously.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty,

The humble Address of the Provost, Fellows and Scholars of the College of the Holy and Undivided Trinity of Queen Elizabeth, near Dublin.

The Success of your Majesty's glorious Attempt to frustrate the ambitious Designs of those Powers who had disturbed the Tranquility of Europe; the Addition of new Strength and Vigour to the Protestant Interest by the Marriage of the Princess of Denmark; and the Increase of your illustrious House by the Birth of a Prince, your faithful Subjects cannot but look upon as uncommon Marks of the Divine Favour to your Majesty and your Kingdoms.

And the fresh Proofs your Majesty has given of your Wisdom and Conduct, must for ever satisfy your loyal Subjects, that their Security from the Designs of Foreign Powers, is no less owing to your Majesty's military Virtues, than their domestick Happiness is to your Arts of Peace.

Nor can we ever entertain the least Apprehension of our Rights being in Danger, under a Prince, who at the Hazard of his own Life, has shewn himself the Guardian of the Liberties of Europe.
