

great Wisdom and Vigilance, in obtaining timely Notice of the Preparations which were making, with an Intent to invade your Majesty's Dominions, in Favour of a popish Pretender; and to assure your Majesty, that we will, upon this and all other Occasions, give the strongest Proofs of our Abhorrence of so wicked and insolent a Design; and (to the utmost of our Power) will exert ourselves, at the Hazard of our Lives and Fortunes, in Support of the just and undoubted Title of your Majesty and your Royal Issue to the Throne of these Kingdoms, against all Pretenders and their Adherents, and all other your Majesty's Enemies whatsoever; having a grateful Sense of the Happiness we have always enjoyed under your auspicious Government, and being truly sensible, from the fullest Conviction and clearest Demonstration, that the Lives, Laws, Religion, Liberties and Properties of your Majesty's Protestant Subjects in Ireland, can be only secured by the Preservation of your Majesty's sacred Person, the Continuance of your Government, and the Succession in your Royal Lineage, which we most fervently wish may be continued to latest Posterity.

The following Address of the Governor, High Sheriff, Grand Jury, Clergy and Protestant Inhabitants of the County of Donegall, having been transmitted to his Grace the Duke of Devonshire, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, has by him been presented to his Majesty: Which Address his Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty,

The humble Address of the Governor, High Sheriff, Grand Jury, Clergy and Protestant Inhabitants of the County of Donegall, at a General Assizes held at Lifford, the 22d Day of March, 1743.

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Governor, High Sheriff, Grand Jury, Clergy and Protestant Inhabitants of the County of Donegall, take this Opportunity of declaring our utmost Abhorrence and Detestation of the Invasion of your Majesty's Kingdoms, lately intended in Favour of a popish Pretender.

Our Religious and Civil Rights, which we have so happily enjoyed under your Majesty's most auspicious Government, and the late Instance in exposing your sacred Person in Defence of those Rights and the Liberties of Europe, in Opposition to the ambitious Views of France, cannot but fill our Hearts with the highest and strongest Sentiments of Zeal, Duty and Affection for your Majesty's Person and Government.

We therefore beg Leave to assure your Majesty, that we will, at the Peril of our Lives and Fortunes, exert our utmost Endeavours in Support of your Majesty's undoubted Right to the Crown of these Realms, from whose Government alone (as settled in your illustrious House) we can expect those inestimable Blessings of a free Enjoyment of our Religion and Liberties.

The following Address of the High Sheriff, the Grand Jury, the Justices of the Peace, and Gentlemen of the County of Tipperary, having been transmitted to his Grace the Duke of Devonshire, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, has by him been presented to his Majesty: Which Address his Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty,

The humble Address of the High Sheriff, the Grand Jury, the Justices of the Peace, and Gentlemen of the County of Tipperary, at an Assizes held at Clonmell, the 24th Day of March, 1743.

Permit us, dread Sovereign, in the Sincerity of our Hearts, to approach your Royal Presence, and to assure your Majesty of our constant and steady Loyalty and Affection to your Person and Government. The late Preparations to invade your Majesty's Dominions, and disturb your Government, call forth our warmest Zeal for your Majesty's Service; and we shall, to the utmost of our Power, endeavour, in the several Stations we are in, to bring to Justice those concealed and infatuated Enemies of our most happy Constitution, who would abet the Design of bringing in a popish Pretender, who can never reign over us but to the certain Loss of every Thing that ought to be most dear to us, our Religion, our Liberty. To repress any Attempt of that Kind, we do most cheerfully devote our Lives and Fortunes to your Majesty's Service, for the Security of both entirely depends on the Support of your Majesty's Right to the Crown, and the Establishment of it in your illustrious Family.

The following Address of the Grand Jury, Merchants and Freeholders of the County of the City of Corke, having been transmitted to his Grace the Duke of Devonshire, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, has by him been presented to his Majesty: Which Address his Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty,

The humble Address of the Grand Jury, Merchants and Freeholders of the County of the City of Corke, assembled at an Assizes held at Corke the 13th of March 1743.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Grand Jury, Merchants and Freeholders of the County of the City of Corke, beg Leave to offer to your Majesty our most hearty Congratulations for the late seasonable Discovery
