Whitehall, May 11, 1745.

An Account of the Action between the Allied Army and that of France, near Tournay, the 11th of May, N. S. 1745. With the Names of the General and other Officers, and Number of private Men, and Horses, that were killed, wounded and missing in each Regiment.

Published by Authority.

THE Enemy open'd their Trenches before Tournay the 30th of April at Night, and as they employed a very great and unusual Number of Workmen, the Siege advanced so fast, that there was no Time to be lost; but, whatever was to be done towards obliging the Enemy to raise it, was necessarily to be put in Execution immediately.

The Generals of the Allied Army looked upon the raising this Siege as a Point of the highest Concern; and his Royal Highness, the Marshal Königsegg, and the Prince of Waldeck, resolved therefore to attempt it, tho' the Enemy was advantageously posted, as well as superior in Number. With this View the Army marched the 9th from Moulbay, and encamped that Evening with the Right at Bougnies, and the Left at Monbray, within a little more than Musket-shot of the advanced Posts of the Enemy.

The Generals went in the Evening to observe them, and could discern easily several of their Squadrons, which were separated from our Army by a Country divided by a little Rivulet on our Left; and by Underwood, Copſes, and Hedges, which they had filled with their Pandours and Graffins, and supported them by several little Squadrons drawn up on a Plain, which rose by an easy Ascent to within a little Distance of their Camp, which was situated at the Top of that Rising, beginning at Antoin, leaving the Village of Fontenoy in their Front, and extending itself towards their Left near a large Wood, which was beyond the Village of Vezon towards the Center of our Right. This Village was also possessed by the Enemy, and covered by small Squadrons, placed at little Distances from each other.

As we could not get into the Plain, which was between their Camp and the Defiles on our Side, without first driving them from all their little Posts; and as it was then late, it was resolved to put off this Attempt till next Morning. Accordingly on the 10th, six Battalions and twelve Squadrons, with 500 Pioneers; six Pieces of Cannon, and two Haubitizers, were commanded from each Wing for this Service, which was performed with great Ease, the Enemy having been driven every where to the very Top of the Rising near their Camp, where they stood drawn up, as well to observe us, as to cover the Dispositions they were making behind that Line; his Royal Highness, the Marshal, and the Prince Waldeck, went upon the Plain, and having examined the Ground, we returned in the Evening to our Camp, after we had seen the Enemy burn a little Village somewhat short of Fontenoy, which they had fortified. We left the Detachments at the Posts they had taken, and the Order was given for attacking the Enemy in the Morning.

His Royal Highness order'd that the Army should march at Two in the Morning ; and as he had been informed that there was in the Front of the Village of Vezon, near the Wood, a Fort mounted with Cannon, where five or six hundred Men might be lodged, he order'd Brigadier Ingoldsby, with four good Battalions, and three Six-pounders, to attack this Village Sword in Hand, whilst the Prince of Waldeck should attack the Village of Fontenoy, which he had undertaken to do. Lieutenant General Campbell was ordered to cover the Infantry of the Right Wing, which was commanded by Lieut. General Ligonier, whilst it should be forming, with fifteen Squadrons, by extending himself along the Plain from the Wood, towards the Village of Fontenoy. But General Campbell having lost his Leg by a Cannon-shot, this Disposition, which had been trusted to him, did not take Effect. However, General Ligonier formed the two Lines of Infantry, quite exposed, without any other Interruption from the Enemy than a brisk Cannonade, which did great Execution, till by Order of his Royal Highness, he caused seven Pieces of Cannon to advance at the Head of the Brigade of Guards, which soon silenc'd the moving Batteries of the Enemy.

The Army was now in Order of Battle, and General Ligonier acquainted His Royal Highness by an Aid de Camp, that he was ready, and if he approved it, would march to attack the Enemy, as soon as Prince Waldeck should march to the Village of Fontenoy, as had been before agreed between them.

The Fort near the Wood should now have been attacked, and if that had been done, as his Royal Highness ordered, it would, in all Probability, have been carried, which would have greatly contributed to our further Success. But by some Fatality, Brigadier Ingoldsby did not attack the Fort, notwithstanding the repeated Orders sent to him by his Royal Highness and General Ligonier.

When our two Lines were drawn up in very good Order, with the Cavalry behind them, his Royal Highness put himself at their Head, and gave Orders to march directly to the Enemy. Prince Waldeck moved at the same Time to attack Fontenoy, which the Left Wing did, but without Effect, and during this March there was a most terrible Fire of Cannon. We advanced nevertheless to the Enemy, and received their Discharge at the Distance of thirty Paces before we fired. Then Things had a very good Appearance, and there was a fair Prospect of a compleat Victory, for our Infantry bore down all before it, and the Enemy were driven three hundred Paces beyond the Fort and the Village, and we were Masters of the Field of Battle as far as to their Camp. But the Left Wing, though favoured by the Fire of our Batteries, and supported by two English Battalions which his Royal Highness sent to favour the Attack of Fontenoy, not having succeeded in that Attack, and the Fort, as has been said before, not having been attack'd at all, we found ourselves between cross Fires of Small Arms and Cannon, and were likewise exposed to that of their Front, so that we found it necessary to retire to the Height of Fontenoy and the Fort near the Wood, from whence also there was a continued Fire, which occasioned some Confusion. But by the Attention of his Royal Highness and the Marshal, it was soon stopt, and the Troops again put into Order.

It was then resolved to make a second Trial, and our Men, encouraged by the Generals, made the Enemy give Way once more, and they were driven to their Camp with great Loss ; but we also began to feel very sensibly the Diminution of our Numbers, and the Left Wing having remained where they were during this second Trial, we were again obliged to retire to the Ground between the Village and the Point of the Wood.

The Enemy's Cavalry attempted to break us as we retired, but they were well received by our Guards, and Major General Zastrow, of the Hanoverian

Troops

Troops, that the Regiment of Noailles was in good Measure destroyed, and the Carabineers, by the Report of Deferters, had 32 Officers killed.

It was then resolved by his Royal Highness, the Marshal, and the Prince of Waldeck, that the whole Army should retire, and the Commanding Officers of Lieutenant General Howard's Regiment, and of the Highlanders, were ordered to post themselves, the first in the Church-yard of Vezon, and the others in the Hedges where they had been posted the Day before. The Cavalry was likewise drawn up to secure our Retreat, which was made in so good Order, the Battalions fronting the Enemy every hundred Paces, that there was not the least Attempt made by the Enemy to disturb us, which seems an Argument that they had suffered very much.

The Baggage belonging to his Royal Highness received Orders about Two to take the Way to Ath. It remained during the Action at his Head Quarters at Bruffoel, and marched about Three. The Marshal Konigsfegg had been hurt by a Fall from his Horse, and was a good deal fatigued, so after the Army was out of the Defiles, he went to Ath, where he arrived in the Evening; but his Royal Highness kept constantly with the Right of the Army, and did not reach Ath till past Three in the Morning.

The Infantry of the Right Wing has behaved very well, and suffered terribly upon this Occasion. The Hanover Troops, as well Cavalry as Infantry, have had their Share with us in the Dangers, Fatigues and Loss. It is impossible to regret sufficiently the great Number of Officers, as well as private Men, who are missing. Most of them we know are dead. Lieut. Gen. Campbell had his Leg shot off, and is since dead. Major Gen. Ponsonby was killed upon the Spot. Lord Albemarle and Major Gen. Howard, and the Brigadiers Churchill and Ingoldsby are wounded, Gen. Howard in four Places.

The Behaviour of the Blue Guards is highly to be commended. The Lieut. Colonel was wounded, and the Major distinguished himself particularly upon this Occasion by his Conduct and Care. The first Battalion of Guards remained the whole Day without being once put into Confusion, tho' they lost many brave Officers as well as private Men. The Highlanders Regiment, the Regiment late Handasyde's, Duroure's, and many others, also distinguished themselves. The Honour gained by the Infantry is in a great Measure owing to the Conduct and Bravery of Lieut. General Ligonier. Major General Zastrow and Lord Albemarle did all that could be expected from brave and experienced Officers.

There are hardly any Prisoners but the wounded, and they were left at the Duke's Quarters at Bruffoel, upon the Confidence of the Cartel and the usual Behaviour upon such Occasions. We have not lost any Colours, Standards, or Kettle Drums, but have taken one Standard. And the Cannon lost was left behind for want of Horses, the Contractors with the Artillery having run off with them so early, that they reach'd Brussels that Day. The Army of the Allies was the next Day incamped in the Neighbourhood of Ath.

Names of the General and other Officers, and Number of private Men, killed, wounded, and missing.

Major General Ponsonby killed; Lieutenant General Campbell's Leg shot off, and dead since; Lord Albemarle rode over and bruised; Major General Howard, Brigadier General Churchill, Brigadier General Ingoldsby, and Lord Ancram and Lord Cathcart, Aides de Camp to his Royal Highness, wounded.
