Dublin, October 8.

ON Tuesday the 6th Instant, the Parliament having met according to the Prorogation, his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant went in State to the House of Peers, and being seated on the Throne with the usual Ceremony, his Excellency sent for the Commons, and made a Speech to both Houses, who unanimously resolved upon humble and dutiful Addresses to his Majesty, which were this Day presented to his Excellency.

His Excellency William Earl of Harrington, Lord Lieutenant General and General Governor of Ireland, his Speech to both Houses of Parliament, at Dublin, on Tuesday the 6th Day of October 1747.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I Am come from the King's Presence by his Royal Command, to meet you here in Parliament: And I do it with so much the greater Satisfaction to myself, as I am honour'd with the Commission of declaring the Continuance of his Paternal Regard and Affection to a Dutiful and Loyal People.

You, with the rest of the King's Subjects, have had long and abundant Proof that the favourite and unvaried Maxim of his Majesty's Government, is to procure the Happiness of his Kingdoms. You cannot therefore doubt of his Majesty's Readiness to give the Royal Assent to such Laws as shall tend to promote your real Interest, and to increase your present Prosperity.

Though so many Months have passed since the total Suppression of the late horrid Rebellion, I cannot yet think it too late to congratulate you upon it. The King saw with Pleasure the Zeal which you then shewed for the Support of our happy Constitution, and your Indignation against that execrable Attempt to subvert it: And his Majesty depends upon your continuing constantly to exert the same good Conduct and Vigilance, which, under God, prevented the Communication of so dangerous an Infection to this Kingdom.

The Education of your poor Youth in the Protestant Charter-Schools, will be, with the eradicating, ~~without having~~ ^{immediate} ~~any~~ ^{towards} Principles to our Religious and Civil Liberties, on which alone the Hopes of a Pretender, bred up in the Maxims of Slavery as well as Popery, are or can be founded.

You may depend upon my Zeal to protect and promote so useful an Institution; and to concur in every other proper Measure for the Preservation of your Domestick Tranquility, and for the Advancement of true Religion, Industry, Knowledge, and Virtue.

I need not exhort you to a particular Attention to your Linen Manufacture: You know the great Importance of it to this Nation: I only desire, that you will consider me as equally sensible of its Value, and equally inclined to promote its Progress and Success. And I hope you will soon find the beneficial Effects of the Act passed in the last Session of Parliament in Great Britain, continuing the Bounties on the Exportation of British and Irish coarse Linens.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

I have nothing in Command from his Majesty to ask, but the usual and necessary Supplies for the Support of the Establishment; and I have order'd the proper Officers to prepare the several

several Accounts and Estimates to be laid before you.

I have likewise given Directions, that an Account of the Sums, which have been taken up, and expended upon the Purchase, of Arms for the Use of the Militia of this Kingdom, and of Cannon towards the Defence and Security of the Harbour of Corke, be laid before you: And I believe you will be satisfied, that those Services have been performed with all possible Oeconomy.

With respect to the Harbour of Corke, some Difficulties having occurred, as to the Ground proper for the Erecting of Batteries, the Execution of that useful Design has been hitherto retarded: But you may be assured, that I shall not fail to do every Thing in my Power towards the Completion of it.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I am persuaded we are met together with the same View and Intention of promoting his Majesty's Service, and the Happiness of his People. I do not press you to Unanimity, Temper, and Dispatch in your Deliberations, because your former Behaviour shews, that you need no Exhortations of that Kind.

For myself, I cannot but desire that you will repose some Confidence in me; but no farther however, than you shall yourselves judge from my Conduct, that it is for your own Sakes, and for the Publick Good, that I desire it.

The humble Address of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament assembled, humbly beg Leave to congratulate your Majesty on the entire Suppression of the late unnatural Rebellion; raised in Favour of a Popish Pretender, and supported by a neighbouring Prince, the constant Enemy of the Liberties of Europe.

Our just Indignation cannot be sufficiently expressed against those, who have endeavour'd to subvert our happy Constitution, and introduce Popery, with its necessary Attendant Arbitrary Power, instead of that True Religion, and those Liberties, which we enjoy under a King, whose distinguished Glory it is ever to have kept united the Freedom of the Subject with the Royalty of the Sovereign; the peculiar Happiness of these Kingdoms.

We should be as much wanting to our Interest, as our most indispensable Duty, if we omitted any Opportunity of giving your Majesty the strongest Assurances, that we consider the Support of your sacred Person and Government, and the Succession in your Royal House, as the lasting Security, under God, of our Civil and Religious Rights: Which inestimable Blessings we are unanimously resolved, as far as in us lies, to transmit to our latest Posterity.

We must ever with Gratitude acknowledge the Royal Bounty and Protection given to the Protestant Charter-Schools of this Kingdom; and we cannot but hope, that this wise Institution, by rescuing many from the Miseries of Sloth and Idleness, will be an effectual Means of promoting among us the Blessings of Labour and Industry; and by a careful Education of the Youth in the true Principles of the Protestant Religion, and just Notions of their Civil Liberties, must utterly defeat the vain Hopes of an abjured Pretender, bred up in the Maxims of Popery and Tyranny.

As we are firmly persuaded, that Promoting the Prosperity of your People is a Part of our Duty the most acceptable to your Majesty, we shall continue our utmost Endeavours to improve and extend the Linen Manufacture, the great Importance of which has been long experienced in this Kingdom.

We are truly sensible of your Majesty's great Attention to the Welfare of this Nation, in committing the Government thereof to his Excellency the Earl of Harrington; whose eminent Virtues and Abilities have distinguished him in Stations of the highest Trust, and whose firm Attachment to your Royal Person and Family must strengthen by our Unanimity and Dispatch in all our Deliberations.

En. Sterne, Cler. Parliamentor.

His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant's Answer.

My Lords,

I Will forthwith transmit this Dutiful and Loyal Address to be laid before his Majesty.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Knights, Citizens and Burgeses in Parliament assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons of Ireland in Parliament assembled, beg Leave to approach your sacred Person, to express, in the most humble Manner, our just Sense of the many Blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's most mild and gracious Government, by the entire Possession of all our Civil and Religious Liberties; a Happiness peculiarly known to your Majesty's Subjects.

The

The Paternal Affection which your Majesty has always shewn to us, fills our Minds with the strongest Sense of Duty and Loyalty; and particularly the recent Instance we have of your Majesty's tender Concern for our Interests, in appointing the Earl of Harrington Governor of this Kingdom, who has so eminently distinguished himself in every Station, and by all his Actions given the highest Proofs of his steady Attachment to your Majesty's Illustrious Family, Person and Government.

We saw with Horror the pernicious Effects of a blind Zeal and Popish Bigotry among several of your Majesty's Subjects in the late unnatural Rebellion; who, by the Assistance of a Foreign Enemy, (ever jealous of your Majesty's Glory, and the Prosperity of your Subjects) endeavour'd to subvert our happy Constitution, to introduce a Popish Pretender to your Majesty's Crown, and thereby, at once, to deprive us of all that is or can be dear and valuable to us, as Men and Protestants.

Your Majesty's Wisdom and Resolution, in suppressing that horrid Attempt, were not more conspicuous than your Clemency in punishing the misguided Abettors of it: Thus gloriously exercising the greatest and most amiable Qualities of an Illustrious Prince.

Permit us, Sir, on this Occasion, with Hearts full of Joy and Gratitude, to return your Majesty our most unfeigned Thanks for our great Deliverance, in which your Majesty's Son, his Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland, had so great a Share, and to whose Courage and Conduct these Nations must be for ever indebted.

And we assure your Majesty we shall cheerfully and unanimously grant Supplies to support your Majesty's Government with Honour; and use all proper Methods to prevent the further Growth of Popery amongst us, and zealously enter into every Measure that shall be necessary to defend your Majesty's just Title to the Crown, and the Protestant Succession in your Royal House, on which depend the Safety and Prosperity of these Kingdoms.

H. Alcock, }

His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant's Answer.

I Will take the first Opportunity to transmit this Dutiful and Loyal Address to His Majesty.

To his Excellency William Earl of Harrington, Lord Lieutenant General and General Governor of Ireland.

The humble Address of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament assembled.

May it please your Excellency,
WE the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament assembled, beg Leave to return our most hearty Thanks to your Excellency for your Speech delivered from the Throne to both Houses of Parliament: And at the same Time to express our sincere Congratulations on your Excellency's happy Arrival in this Kingdom.

We have received innumerable Proofs of his Majesty's Paternal Regard and Affection to his Subjects of Ireland; but none more acceptable, than his committing the Government of it to your Excellency: From whose approved Abilities and Wisdom, we may justly promise to ourselves every Advantage.

His Majesty's gracious Acceptance of our Zeal for the Support of his Government, during the late horrid Attempt to subvert it, fills us with unspeakable Satisfaction: And your Excellency may on all Occasions depend upon our steady Adherence to the same Principles by which we were then animated, and to which we are bound by the strongest Ties of Interest, Duty and Gratitude.

Your Excellency has shewn your real Concern for our Welfare, in recommending to our Care the Institution for Educating of Popish Children in the Protestant Charter-Schools: Which, we hope, may, in Time, with the Blessing of God, bring them under the Influence of true Religion, and the Habits of Industry, Order, and Sobriety. Persuasive and gentle Applications are the Means we are most desirous to employ towards reclaiming those unhappy People; and we shall proceed in them with the greater Confidence, since they have received your Excellency's Approbation.

Our immediate Interest calls upon us to promote with all possible Care the Linen Manufacture: And your Excellency has convinced us of your affectionate Regard to our Happiness, by proposing those Things only to our Consideration, on which our own Prosperity depends. We already feel the beneficial Effects of the Bounty lately continued by Great Britain to that valuable Branch of our Trade; and we have a full and just Sense of the early and effectual Proof, that your Excellency on that Occasion gave of your favourable Attention to it.

Unanimity, Temper and Dispatch in our Deliberations are the natural Result of those Sentiments of Loyalty, which we have constantly professed to the best of Kings. And the Dignity and Weight of your Excellency's Character, the Solidity of your Judgment, your Truth, Candour, and Integrity, Qualities universally known and acknowledged; always the Objects of our Esteem, and now the Grounds of our Confidence, will prove additional Motives and Assistances to the Endeavours we shall on our Part strenuously exert for the promoting the true Service of his Majesty; the Security and Happiness of his People, and the Ease and Honour of your Excellency's Government.

En. Sterne, Cler. Parliamentor.

His

His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant's Answer.

My Lords,
I Return your Lordships Thanks for this very obliging and affectionate Address, and you may be assured, that it shall be my constant Endeavour to convince you of the Value I set upon your Esteem, by my Attention to promote the Welfare and Happiness of this Kingdom.

To his Excellency William Earl of Harrington, Lord Lieutenant General and General Governor of Ireland.

The humble Address of the Knights, Citizens and Burgesses in Parliament assembled.

May it please your Excellency,
WE his Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Commons of Ireland in Parliament assembled, return your Excellency our humble Thanks for your excellent Speech from the Throne.

The long and abundant Proofs we, with the rest of his Majesty's Subjects, have already had, of his Majesty's paternal Care, leaves us no Room to doubt of the Continuance of his Royal Protection; and we cannot but esteem it as a particular Instance of his Majesty's Regard for this Kingdom, that he has at this Time appointed for its Governor a Person so eminently distinguished, as well for his early Experience in military Affairs, as for his great Integrity and known Abilities in Posts of the highest Trust and Dignity.

The dreadful Calamities, which Popery has already brought upon this Country, make us, in a peculiar Manner, rejoice at the total Suppression of the late horrid Rebellion, in Favour of a popish and abjured Pretender; and will always unite us in a steady Adherence to a Prince, by whose Royal House our Religion and Liberties have been so effectually secured.

We cannot have a more convincing Proof of your Excellency's Attention to the Good of this Kingdom, than your recommending to our Care the Protestant Charter-Schools, and Linen Manufacture, which must necessarily meet with Success, as your Excellency has so strongly taken them under your Protection.

The inviolable Attachment your Excellency has always so remarkably shewn to his Majesty's Person and Government, cannot fail of creating in us the highest Confidence: And we beg Leave to assure you, that nothing shall be wanting, on our Part, to express our Duty to his Majesty, by the Regard we shall shew for the Ease and Honour of your Excellency's Administration.

H. Alcock, }

His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant's Answer.

I Am extremely obliged to the House of Commons for the good Opinion of me, which they are pleased to express in this very affectionate Address, and you will, I hope, be persuaded of my very sincere Desire to merit the Continuance of it, by making the Interests of this Kingdom the Objects of my utmost Care and Attention.

Liège, October 20, N. S. We do not hear that the French Troops are gone into Winter Quarters, but it is daily expected, their Cover'd Waggons having been sent to Brussels, and every other Preparation made, which plainly shews, that they only wait to watch the Motions of the Allied Army. The Imperialists and Hanoverians still remain encamped hereabouts.

Hague, October 24, N. S. His Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland arrived here early on Sunday Morning, and proposes returning to the Army as soon as the Winter Quarters are regulated, which, it is imagined, may be in a very few Days. The Morning that his Royal Highness the Duke left Breda, the Corps of Troops, which the Enemy had encamp'd at Wyneghem, under M. Lowendahl, were retired towards Antwerp, and the advanced Posts of the Allied Army attacked their Rear, but no considerable Advantage was gain'd, and only a few Prisoners taken. We have Advice here, that some of the Enemy's Troops are filing off towards Dutch Flanders. The British Troops under the Orders of General Ligonier, are to march to the Lines of Terheyde, behind which it is supposed they will encamp To-morrow. Prince Frederick of Hesse Cassel and Marshal Bathiani are expected here this Evening or To-morrow Morning. Major General Thierry, who was sent to defend the Forts upon the Scheld, is lately arrived here upon his Parole.

Whitehall, October 16, 1747.

It having been represented to the King, That on Wednesday the 7th Instant, between Twelve and One of the Clock in the Morning, a considerable Number of Persons, arm'd with Muskets, Pistols, and Swords, went to the Custom house at Poole in Dorsetshire, and placed a Guard upon the Watchmen, and all other Persons, whom they met with in the Streets; and then broke open the outward Door of the said Custom-house, and the Door of the Collector's Office, and one other Door leading to the King's Warehouse; declaring, they were come for their Tea; and accordingly took from thence all the Tea, which had been lately seized by Capt. Johnson, Commander of the Swift Privateer, being upwards of Four Thousand Two Hundred Weight, and carried the same to a Place in the said Town, where their Horses waited; obliging the Watchmen to go and remain with them, till they had loaded them: That they were upwards of Sixty in Number, with about Thirty Horses; and that they left behind them, in their Hurry, a Crow Bar of a new and uncommon Make; His Majesty, for the better discovering and bringing to Justice the Persons concerned therein, is pleased to promise his most gracious Pardon to any one of the Offenders, who shall discover any one, or more of his Accomplices, so that he or they may be apprehended and convicted thereof.

HOLLES NEWCASTLE.

By Order of the Commissioners,
