this way, and it was thought his Majesty would have marched directly towards Limburg, but it feems his Majesty makes a halt till Huy be taken , being at prefent quartered ar the Abby of Van Notice Dame next Huy, which place the French will formally begin to attack to morrow. Several preparations feem to be making here for the reception of his Majesty, though withous any certainty that he will come hither. The Mareschaf de Crequissince the reduction of Dinant, has taken the Cattle of Thierry between Dinant and Charlemont, and it is afaid, that he is now on his march with the Troops, under his Command towards Affaria to reinforce Monsieur de Turenne, others report, that only 6000. Horse are fent that way, certain it is, that agood reinforcement is gone to join Monsieur de Tygenne, who at predent leems not to be in a posture to make head against the Imperi-The French are making their Interest here to have the Cardinal of Bouillan chosen Coadjutor of Some report as if his Most Christian, Majesty would suddenly return for Paris.

Malines: Fune 4. The Prince of Orange is still at Duffel, his Army-lying very much at large, so that it takes up about 10 Miles in compass, to the great charge of the Country people, though his High, promises to eafethem ina day or two at farthest, and to march with his Army fo foon as Jome Regiments he ver expects from Holland are arrived. It is faid, That his Highness Army is already fronger than that of the Most Christian Kings, and that however the Spaniards are to join with it about to Regiments of Foot, and 6 or 7000 Horse. This day the Duke of Villa Hermola visited his Highness at Duf fel, whom we are told, his Excellency much pressed to march, to prevent any deligns the French may have. They at present besiege Hux, which place we hope will make a good desence. We hear that the Mareschal de Crequi, is gone with a good Body of Men towards Alsquis, to reinforce Monsieur de Turenne, who its said, cannot at present make above 18 or 20000 Men a and that the Confederates are 49000. Brussels, June 4. The Prince of Orange continues fill his quarters, at Duffel, his Army lying at large in the Country, till the rest of the Infantry come up 3 five Regiments being on their way by Water, and two Regiments of Horse by Land, which will be with the Army this night. The whole number of their marching Body, bettides what they leave in Garifons here, will be about 2,5000 Foot, and near 1,0000 Horse and Dragoons. This Morning very early his Excellency is gone to visit his Highness, accompanied with the Count de Rasch, and Commander Villeneufe. On Saturday the Month Christian King removed his Camp to Van Noffe Dame, nearer, Huy, and on Sunday morning they began their Batteries. Before Huy was invested, feveral Officers and Granadeers arrived there, Icon from Namby, which makes us hope that place will hold out longer than Dimakes us hope that place will not out longer than Dimant did and yet some talk here as if it were already surrendred, but without ground. The King has caused two Bridges to be thrown over the Meuse, one at St. Lamberty, betwist Liege and Huy, and another at St. Leomards betwist Liege and Vises. On Saturday came as great Convoy from Maestricht to Liege, with 5000.

Men of that Carison: And great quantities of Meal ar
already delivered out to bake Bread for the Army. It already delivered out to bake Bread for the Army. It thought that after the reducing of Huy, the French will march directly towards Limbourg, From Cambray of the scool instant, we are told, aparty from that Garifon has made an Incursion on the other side of Period and burnt a Castle, where they have plyindered and burnt a Castle, to he intends in due time to give notice to all whom it may concern. That Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis Critical Mr. Matthew Poole, the Author of the Synopsis

13 W 50% :

and large

and returned with a confiderable booty of Horses and That another party from thence brought in 30 Suiffers, with two Captains; and that a party of the Garifon of Touthain having taken 20 French Prisoners, and being nearer Mons than their own Garison, they fent them thicher with 10 Men for their Guard y but the Governor of-Mons refusing to receive them, they conducted them towards Bouchain: but by the way the Prisoners taking their advantage, fell upon their Guard, released themselves, and carried four or five of their Guard Prifoners to Que fnoy, the rest making a hard shift to escape. Our last Letters from Germany, tell us, That all things are disposing for the Siege of Philipsburg; that Monjecuculi has thrown a Bridge over the Rhine, betwixe Spire and bilipsburg; that the Elector Palatine is come to Spire to be near the Siege; that all the other Princes concerned are thereabouts with their Forces; that they are turning the small River that runs by Philapsburg into the Rpine; and that though Philapabung stands upon a Marish, which would have rendred their approaches very difficult, yet by the turning of the River, and by the driness of the Season, the Marish is hard enough to hear Cannon, which may much quicken the reduction of that place; they write also that Monte queuli will have an Army fufficient to fight Monsieur de Turenne (if he shall adventure to attack him) and to continue the Siege alfo; and that he is intrenching his Camp in the most convenient place to hinder relief, and fight upon occasion.

Hague, June 4. Our last Letters from the Prince of Oranges Army were dated the 31 past at Duffel, which give an account of his Highness having had a Conserence with the Duke of Villa Hermosa, Governor of the Spanish Netherlands, at Vilvord, and that the Army would march in a day or two at farthest. King of Denmark hath approved of the late Agreement that was made here between his Ministers, and those of the other Allies, for the carrying on the War, fo that it is now every day expected that his Majesty will publickly declare. According to our advices from Strafburgh, the Imperialifts certainly defign to beliege Philipsbarg, in order to which Prince Pio had already passed the Rhine with 4 or 5000 Men, and General Montecueuli having joined the Imperial Army that game from Hailbron, was likewise on his march towards Philipsburg; and the Elector Palatine had put a Garifon into Spire, which hitherto hath enjoyed a Neutralitter because of the Imperial Chamber being held there. The four Men of War fitted out at Amsterdam, part of the nine which are to be equipped in these Provinces to join with the Fleet of the King of Denmirk are ready two of them have already passed the Pampus, and are; failed to the Texel, and the other two will likewise pass, the Pampus in two or three days. From Hamburg they. write, That the 31 past, the Duke of Hanouers Forces begun to march, and that at the fame time the Suedes. take their way towards the Elbe, in order as is imagined to join them. " And on the other side, that the Forces of the Elector of Brandenburgh are coming down. to oppose them.

Advertisement.